

Awaken your five senses as you discover the making of teas, rum & vanilla...

You will visit the “Domaine des Aubineaux”, a colonial house built in 1872, in a lush garden in the high lands and which used to be the house of the owners of a main tea plantation.

The tour will continue to Bois Chéri tea factory. Walk through the process of tea making and visit the museum. You will also enjoy the different variety of teas produced at the chalet with a panorama overlooking a pond and the south of the island.

You will then head further South to Saint Aubin, an estate comprising of a colonial house - built in 1819; an old rum distillery - possibility of rum tasting, anthurium flower & vanilla greenhouses - possibility to buy some of this exquisite spice. You will also have the opportunity to enjoy a Mauritian lunch at the colonial house, converted into a Table d'hôte.
